There are still some places that are hard to enter with a wheel chair, the city hall is one of them. They could use automatic doors at city hall.

Trying to enter the civic Auditorium from the sidewalk in a wheel chair is almost impossible. There are some uneven and damaged sidewalks downtown that have led to falls. Additionally, the bathroom doors on the 4th floor of the library are very heavy and difficult to open for handicapped individuals.

Have you encountered any physical barrier or obstruction in a city park that has prevented you from using or participating in a program, service or activity?

Do you have any general comments or items regarding accessibility that you would like the city to be aware of?

I will say that there are many, many areas in this town where things are incredibly cramped and crowded and it is scary and difficult for even the general person to get around. A lot of the high traffic areas are also areas where we have an extreme amount of pedestrian activity. There may not be much we can actually do to accommodate, it's up to the awareness of drivers.

I think this survey is skewed. As a person that is NOT handicapped, I might overlook things that a handicapped person would see or experience. There should have been a question "are you handicapped?" Then, seperate those answers.

Don't go overboard on providing "accessibility" that won't be used. Like the sidewalk along Wilcox that nobody uses. And like the p[roposed sidewalk along Stone Drive, which is just stupid and potentially dangerous.

The Kingsport Public Library needs a lot of improvement concerning ADA. The 'ramp' outside the front entrance is too steep but to be able to push yourself up. There is no automatic door openings. I have to pull the heavy doors open or wait until someone will hold the door open for me. The elevator is very small. There is no way that it would fit a stretcher on it if someone fell ill. There is also a slope to the floor on the 4th floor. I have seen people trip over it. There are bricks on the sidewalk outside that are coming up. The library has a lot of elderly patrons and the city needs to improve these situations.

Partially, there needs to be automatic doors on all buildings for those that cannot get in to a building alone.

Have you experienced physical barriers or constraints on a city owned sidewalk or a paved path (i.e. Greenbelt) belonging to the city?

The crosswalk at the parking garage to the Justice Center is dangerous. There needs to be a signal, raised crosswalk, speed bumps, something to slow people down.

I feel that there should be work done around the Justice Center for safety and for accessibility since the expansion is coming. More offices means more traffic. The bricks on the sidewalk are a danger. Several people have fallen or almost fallen because of the way they give and they are easily tripped by. There needs to be automatic doors at the main entrance and to the entrances to all major offices. There needs to be some type of safety mechanism from parking garage to the Justice Center.
